MIDDLETOWN — Nearly 270 members of the Navy League of Newport County, elected officials, community business leaders, representatives from various civic organizations and members of the general public assembled May 10 to show their appreciation to those who serve on the high seas throughout southern New England.

The Newport County Council Navy League's annual Military Appreciation Night and Dinner Meeting is one of the highlights of the year for the local council. It was held at the Atlantic Beach Club.

Officers and enlisted men and women representing the U.S. Navy, U.S. Marine Corps and U.S. Coast Guard along with many international Officers from the Naval War College were honored guests of the council with Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Manpower and Reserve Affairs Juan M. Garcia III as this year's speaker.

"There is no way we would be where we are today after 10 years of sustained combat operations if it were not for the Navy League," Garcia said.

Garcia spoke of the diverse missions the Navy engages in on a daily basis.

"Your Navy and Marine Corps team are having a staggering impact on the world today," he said as he used an example of a one week period in April of 2011 when Navy and Marine Corps personnel were involved in humanitarian operations in response to the tsunami and earthquake in Japan, as well as off the coast of Africa; doing polar ice cap operations under the north pole; rescuing Iranian fishermen in the Persian Gulf; and Navy Seal Team 6 was hard at work ridding the world of Osama Bin Laden.

"We have never had this qualified a force," he said.

MCPON appreciates role of Navy spouse

Special from MCPON

WASHINGTON (NNS) — Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy (MCPON) (SS/SW) Rick D. West released the following message to the fleet in honor of Navy spouses on May 11:

"Shipmates, Military Spouse Appreciation Day, although officially recognized May 11 this year, should be a daily occurrence.

Our spouses work as hard as we do making sure our homes and families are well looked after and allowing us to focus on America's missions.

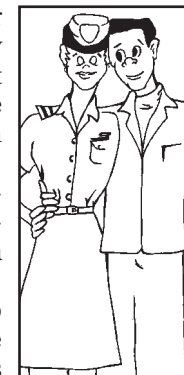

Our spouses have to pay the bills, fix the cars, build science projects, and most times work a full time job themselves. They are also the ones who may have to answer the door when someone in uniform knocks and delivers a message no one ever wants to hear.

All over the globe, the proud men and women who support our Navy's Sailors consistently answer the call of sacrifice. It takes a truly remarkable person to endure the separation and stress of being married to a Sailor — it takes a unique set of gifts. And all of you who proudly stand beside our Navy men and women do so quietly, offering your prayers, kindness, and love, while seeking nothing in return. If Sailors are the backbone of the Navy, then truly our families are the Navy's heart and soul. For without all of you, there would be nothing to protect and defend.

On behalf of my wife, Bobbi, and myself, I would like to personally thank each and every one of you who continue to advocate for and offer your unending support to our shipmates every day and to also thank you for everything you do to make our Navy and our nation the greatest and strongest on earth."

Very Respectfully,
Rick West

Online appointments stressed for IDs

The Personnel Support Detachment's ID Card Section in Building 690 has posted its summer schedule and provided information for incoming students.

ID card appointments can be made in advance at <https://rapids-appointments.dmdc.osd.mil>. The appointment scheduler is highly recommended, as wait times for walk-in customers are expected to increase.

Anyone who chooses not to make an appointment should call 841-3021/2601 and the staff will provide an approximate wait time based on the number of customers waiting to be seen.

All customers who are age 21 and older must have two forms of state or government issued IDs to obtain a new ID card—one must be a photo ID. Expired Common Access Card (CAC) or military dependent ID is acceptable as one form of ID. The other form of ID must be current.

Full time college students over age 21 must also have a letter from their school registrar stating that they are enrolled and anticipated graduation date.

For incoming summer classes, two of the three workstations will be assigned to process ID cards for students on the following dates:

Officer Development School, May 23-24, June 20-21 and July 18-19;

Naval War College international students, July 23-27;

Naval Academy Prep School, July 30 to Aug. 3.

Wait times during these dates will be long.

Anyone with questions about what is an acceptable form of ID or what supporting documentation must be produced, may call 841-3021/2601.

The ID Card Section's hours of operation are Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. All business must be completed by 4 p.m.

SWOS holds change of command

By LT. S. GONZALEZ

Director of Strategic Communications
SWOSCOLCOM

The Surface Warfare Officers School Command (SWOSCOLCOM) held its change of command ceremony in Adm. Michael Mullen Auditorium on Tuesday. Capt. Richard A. Brown relieved Capt. Neil R. Parrott as commanding officer, Surface Warfare Officer School.

Guest speaker was Rear Adm. Clifford S. Sharpe, Chief Operating Officer of the Naval Education and Training Command. He formerly was an instructor at SWOS and the Naval Academy Prep School.

During his tour at SWOS, Parrott oversaw the implementation of cutting edge technological innovation with the Full Mission

Bridge (FMB) and advancement of intelligent tutoring. He is also credited with raising SWOS's response to fleet needs with the establishment of the Surface Navigator course and the Senior Officer Ship Material Readiness Course (SOSM-RC), both established in response to fleet feedback requesting greater navigation and ship material conditioning training. Yet Parrott's greatest leadership success came with the complex consolidation of the Center for Naval Engineering with SWOS.

The consolidation resulted in a staggering 400 percent increase in manning and fiscal oversight along with a 1,000 percent increase in student throughput, making SWOS responsible for training

Cybercrime here to stay, expert warns

By R. ALEXANDER

Navalog editor

Cybercrime now outpaces drug trafficking as the most profitable revenue source for organized crime. But that's not the bad news.

Cybercrime is relentless, and at least in the near future, unstoppable.

Those were the opinions of Professor Victor Fay-Wolfe, director of the Digital Forensics and Cyber Security Center at the University of Rhode Island.

He was the guest speaker on May 10 at Salve Regina University's Pell Center for International Relations and Public Policy. His lecture, "Cybersecurity: Fact From Fiction" was in collaboration with the Council for International Visitors.

Fay-Wolfe said cyberthreats are constant. Though at least one in five Americans has experienced some sort of cybercrime through "phishing," where credit card or social security numbers are stolen, the big victims are corporations.

The theft of intellectual property and assets, such as pharmaceutical formulas, bank accounts, military weapons designs, or auto engineering concepts, can cost millions of dollars. Hackers can break into company computer networks, and sell the designs to offshore companies outside the reach of U.S. law.

"So without a dime spent on research and development, hackers have attained valuable products to sell on the open market."

The number of incidences of these large cybercrimes is underreported, he said, because it's embarrassing to the companies. Who would open a savings account in a bank that loses money to hackers, he asked rhetorically.

Cybercrime is especially concerning to the military, he said. In April 2009 computer spies stole the specs and blueprints to the Pentagon's $300 billion F-35

Flagging of graves, observances commemorate Armed Forces Day

Many Americans celebrate Armed Forces Day annually on the third Saturday of May. It is a day to pay tribute to men and women who serve the United States' armed forces. Armed Forces Day is also part of Armed Forces Week, which begins on the second Saturday of May.

The following is a listing of Armed Forces Day events in our area:

Post 18 to flag graves

Portsmouth American Legion Post 18 will flag veterans' graves over the next three days, May 19-21.

On Saturday, May 19, at 8 a.m. volunteers should muster and flag headstones at St. Mary's Cemetery on East Main Road, Portsmouth (rain or shine).

When finished, the volunteers will caravan across the street to Trinity Cemetery, and then finish at the Portsmouth Burial Ground on Turnpike Avenue.

Flagging of graves by Newport American Legion Post 7 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 406 will take place at the cemetery on the corner of Brandt and Van Zandt Avenue on Sunday, May 20, at 9 a.m. (rain or shine). When done, the veterans will flag graves at Braman's Cemetery (on the railroad track side of Farewell Street). Portsmouth Legion Post 18 will assist.

Annual flagging of graves with Portsmouth American Legion will take place, Monday, May 21, at 5:45 p.m. (rain or shine) at Fort Adams. Volunteers should muster at the cemetery below Eisenhower House west of the historic fort.

This cemetery is traditionally flagged at sundown. Most of the headstones are illegible due to age and weather erosion. Therefore, a flag is usually placed between each headstone.

Senior members of Post 18 will flag out-lying areas and town memorials. New volunteers will be paired with those who are experienced.

With 17 Navy off-duty deaths this year and the Memorial Day weekend commencing Navy Safety Center's 100 Days of Summer campaign, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Manpower and Reserve Affairs Juan Garcia emphasized safety at an "all hands" call at Naval Station Newport on May 10.

Garcia toured Naval Station (NAVSTA) Newport and the Naval War College to learn more about the training and education facilities there and to raise awareness of the Navy's recent initiative to maximize Sailor and Marine personal readiness: the 21st Century Sailor and Marine initiative.

the Basic Riders Course," said Garcia. "But last year, of the 12 Sailors killed in motorcycle accidents, nine completed the Basic Rider Course, but did not complete either the sport bike or advanced rider course. There was no requirement for them to take the second course. We've closed that loophole and those are now requirements for active duty Sailors who ride motorcycles."

Safety is one of five focus areas of the 21st Century Sailor and Marine initiative designed to ensure every Sailor and Marine and their families have the tools they need to succeed and excel in their Navy career.

Before the all hands call in Spruance Auditorium at the Naval War College, Garcia took advantage of his stop at NAVSTA to have breakfast with Sailors and Marines in Ney Hall galley.

Yeoman 1st Class De'mont Michell, assigned to Naval Academy Prep School, asked about the availability of 100 percent tuition assistance for Sailors E-6 and below who want to pursue a master's degree.

"Tuition is funded by DoD, and we are trying to stretch tuition assistance as far as possible," Garcia said. He also said approximately 8,000 Sailors graduated with degrees in 2011.

Garcia also answered questions about the Enlisted Review Board, Perform to Serve, high year tenure, Marine Corps manning, Helmets-to-Hard Hats, and DDG ship manning.

"I hadn't heard of the 21st Century Sailor and Marine initiative before today, said Operations Specialist 2nd Class Steven Damsa at the Naval War College. "I think it's a good initiative because my wife follows me around and she's part of my Navy career."

over 67,000 Sailors annually. SWOS now stretches around the globe from Newport to San Diego and on to Yokosuka, Japan.

"I am very happy to have had the opportunity to work with the fantastic Sailors, their families and civilians throughout the SWOS domain; they truly are America's finest," said Parrott. "For three years, we have worked together to ensure our officers and enlisted engineers reported to their ships well trained and prepared to do their jobs. I am very proud of what we have accomplished."

Parrott, and his wife Sally, were also strong advocates for family support during his tour.

"My wife committed herself to ensuring our family readiness increased by fostering a peerless ombudsman network, waterfront support resources for families in need, and support groups for both surface officer and enlisted spouses," said Parrott. "Her view has always been that family readiness equals operational readiness."

The ceremony marks the end of a three-year command tour for Parrott. He will be heading to Expeditionary Warfare Training Group Atlantic.

Capt. Brown is a 1985 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. He assumes command of SWOS with extensive command experience, including tours as commanding officer aboard destroyer USS The Sullivans (DDG 68) and cruiser USS Gettysburg (CG 64). He most recently served as executive assistant to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Manpower and Reserve Affairs.

"I am honored to take command of Surface Warfare Officer School," said Brown. "I dedicate my service over the next couple of years to the Officers and Enlisted of whom SWOS has been entrusted to train and prepare for shipboard duty. I can think of no higher tasking."

"The U.S. estimates China has about 100,000 military members dedicated just to cyberwarfare," he said. In fiscal 2008, the federal government reported 18,050 cyber security breaches in his government branches.

The Navy no longer deals with China directly for electronic components, Fan Wolfe said. In fact, the Navy has stood up a "10th Fleet," an anticybercrime force just as dedicated to deterrence as the seagoing fleets around the world.

Computer hacking isn't hard, he said. It once took a clandestine cloak and dagger approach to infiltrate a company, snatch a few documents from file cabinets, and smuggle them out in briefcase with a false bottom.

"Now they can put two disgruntled kids in a basement in New Jersey, give them a computer, and they can gain access and copy half a million documents, and there's no physical evi-

Navy gets peek at 'Battleship'

WASHINGTON (NNS) — Navy Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR), in coordination with Universal Studios, offered special screenings of the movie, Battleship, to Sailors and their families prior to the nationwide release of the action film today.

The film's director, Peter Berg, kicked off the free screenings at Naval Base Coronado and Naval Base San Diego on May 11.

Special screenings also took place this week at the Marine Corps' Camp Lejeune; Naval Air Station Whidbey Island; Naval Submarine Base New London; Joint Base Little Creek-Fort Story; Washington, D.C.; Naval Air Station Jacksonville; and onboard USS Missouri.

Battleship is a 2012 American science fiction action naval war film. The film stars Taylor Kitsch, Alexander Skarsgrd, Rihanna, Brooklyn Decker and Liam Neeson as the battleship's commanding officer.

Navy Nurse Corps marks 104th

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (NNS) — Service members, civilian employees and Department of Defense (DoD) personnel working at Navy Medicine Support Command celebrated the 104th birthday of the Navy Nurse Corps last Monday with a cake-cutting ceremony at the command's headquarters at Naval Air Station Jacksonville, Fla.

The U.S. Navy Nurse Corps, officially designated May 13, 1908, has remained an integral portion of Navy Medicine, with Navy Nurses serving at clinics and hospitals throughout the global reach Navy Medicine employs in ongoing contingency operations.

USS Constitution Sailors in Spokane

SPOKANE, Wash. (NNS) — Sailors assigned to the frigate USS Constitution in Boston, Mass., are participating in Spokane Navy Week through May 20.

Sailors kicked off their participation with an interactive history presentation about Constitution at Medical Lake Middle School in Medical Lake, Wash. They also gave presentations at Mountainside and Horizon Middle Schools later in the week.

dence left behind," he said.

But Fay-Wolfe said the situation is not all "doom and gloom."

Combating cyber crime first takes awareness of cyber-threats, he said, and computer users are the most vulnerable to attacks.

The military and private companies are doing much more to ensure cybersecurity. Employees are trained about how viruses and "worms" can get into computer networks through spyware or malware imbedded in memory sticks in USB ports, or through suspicious Internet sites.

Federal laws controlling cybercrime are being introduced, and Rhode Island is very progressive in workforce development in training how to detect and combat cybercrime.

Salve, Roger Williams University, Brown University and other colleges now offer courses on cyber-intelligence, forensic and cyber security, and cyber-communications and right to privacy issues, Fay-Wolfe said.

President Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by William S. Sims, naval aide, steps ashore at Dewey Field during one of his three visits to the Naval War College. He chaired the Battleship Conference in Newport in July 1908. To his left and right are believed to be the Dahlgren cannons removed from the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes and mounted at the landing after 1912. They were later moved to the top of Dewey Field in front of the museum. Sims later became Naval War College president.

"This was a spectacular overall performance that made a difference for our Sailors and Marines and their families," said Capt. Douglas Mikatarian, Commanding Officer, Naval Station Newport.

The fund drive, conducted during the month of March 2012, was extended by Mikatarian to April 13 to provide additional time for the drive's key persons to ensure 100 percent contact of all active duty members within their respective units.

"Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society is most grateful to the key persons and leadership of Newport area commands for their outstanding support... starting with Rear Adm. and Mrs. Christenson's presence at the kick-off," said Pat Drislane, director, NMCRS, Newport.

Chief Hospital Corpsman Thomas Smalls at the Naval War College and Chief Information Systems Technician William Hartsell at Officer Training Command, were the military fund drive coordinators.

They received the Navy Achievement Medal (NAM) from Capt. Douglas Mikatarian, Commanding Officer, Naval Station Newport, on May 9 at the Officers' Club for their efforts.

NMCRS assistance ranges from basic living expenses such as food, clothing, housing, and household setup, utilities, and phone bills; to emergency transportation and car repairs; to CO-verified pay problems to funeral expenses and Quick Assist Loans.

"I was ecstatic with the overwhelming support from commands, and the opportunity to work with some outstanding keypersons on getting the job done," Smalls said.

"For those of us in uniform, we take a particular pride in the Navy and Marine Corps' proud heritage of taking care of our own."

"Chief Smalls' masterful planning, coordination, and follow-up with the tenant commands, along with front office oversight and extensive publicity from Naval Station were key to the tremendous success of this year's drive," Drislane said.

"This past year, nearly one in every five active duty Sailors and Marines around

The Newport Council holds approximately 10 events each year to recognize and honor local service men and women. In addition to these events, it participates in more than 140 graduation and awards ceremonies annually at local Navy and Coast Guard commands.

It sponsors the annual Junior Officer, Senior Enlisted, and Junior Enlisted Service Member of the Year Awards Program for the Newport naval complex; and U.S. Coast Guard Officer and Enlisted Member of the Year Program. In addition the Council recognizes throughout the year, the distinguished graduates of Officer Candidate School, Officer Development School, Naval Academy Preparatory School, Surface Warfare Officer School, the Senior Enlisted Academy and the Sailors of the Quarter of the local Coast Guard cutters and shore stations.

"The generosity of our Newport area commands will help the Society to continue its mission of responding in time of need with high quality programs and services for the Navy-Marine Corps family worldwide," she said.
